Hyatt

Regency Tokyo (Location: 2-7-2 Nishi-Shinjuku,

Shinjuku-ku, Tokyo) The Hyatt Regency Tokyo has completed the renovation of over 90% of the total guestroom inventory adding a new studio category suitable for a family accommodating up to four guests. This has been the most extensive transformation in its 45-year history since the hotel's opening in 1980. The interior design was spearheaded by NAO Taniyama & Associates, a globally acclaimed design firm renowned for its work with leading luxury hotels around the world.

The concept behind the redesign was to capture the distinctive character of Shinjuku through a timeless yet contemporary design. reflect a seamless fusion of timeless elegance and contemporary style, creating a calm, refined atmosphere that suits today's lifestyle while maintaining a sense of lasting beauty.

Inspired by the vibrant spirit and diversity of Shinjuku, the new room designs strike a balance between aesthetics and comfort. This transformation offers a renewed sense of place, enhancing the guest experience while reimagining the overall atmosphere of the hotel.

To reflect the unique identity of "Shinjuku," each renovated guest room features custom-made wall coverings created using traditional Shinjuku dyeing techniques. This artisanal detail pays homage to the area's rich history—once a thriving hub of numerous dye workshops that flourished along the banks of the Kanda River, where water-based dyeing methods evolved over time. The shimmering surface of the river is captured in delicate shades of blue, gray, and light blue, creating a wall installation that feels more like an art piece than a design element—adding a layer of natural tranquility into the heart of the city.

Each room is thoughtfully designed with open closets that offer generous storage space, enhancing functionality without compromising style. In the bathrooms, quartz stone flooring and sleek black marble countertops add to the modern and sophisticated ambiance, completing an interior that is both stylish and comfortable.

Hyatt Regency Tokyo has introduced two completely new room types as part of this renovation, a studio and corner studio category suitable for families further expanding the accommodation offering with a fresh design and functionality.
